

IMPULSE Nexus SEND supports every stage of the Special Educational Needs & Disabilities (SEND) journey, helping services identify the needs of each child early, to enable effective support and provision for them and enhance the visibility of their journey. We have also specifically designed an enhanced collaborative system for integrated support for 0-25 year olds, meaning that you can support every child's SEND requirements through IMPULSE SEND.

This is a highly configurable module, meaning that you can use it for as much of the local SEND processes as you need, from controlling it in its entirety, to supporting an enhanced multi-system framework. IMPULSE SEND works interactively with IMPULSE Nexus school, professional and parent portals, so that there is simple, real-time transparency across your processes with professionals, parents, carers and young people alike, with all parties able to engage with and contribute to the journey and outcomes.

OPTIMISED REAL TIME COLLABORATION

Innovative collaborative process

Parents and professionals can access, contribute to and comment on the Education Health & Care Plan (EHCP) in collaboration with the school and others. They can be fully in touch with the decisions and outcomes regarding their children directly through a secure portal.

The IMPULSE school portal enables schools to start and manage the process from the assessment request stage.

Schools can build a plan in conjunction with others via a real-time communication and updating process, working in conjunction with the local authority, parent, professional and young person portals.

Views, contributions and comments are easily collected, reviewed and shared by professionals and families throughout the assessment stages. This leads to an agreed EHCP and provision compliant with the SEND code of practice.

Furthermore, IMPULSE SEND is multi-lingual, helping users communicate clearly in their preferred language. It will continue to provide ongoing changes to the required returns to the Department for Education (DfE) as part of our standard service.
